

Approvals needed for research projects

There are many approvals required for any research project at the PhD and master's level. The approvals must be taken from several concerned authorities, like the college committee and any public works committee whose records or space you are accessing. Moreover, you will need to take permissions from people who are a part of the research as sample group or participants. In case there is any hazard to health or environment, the same should be disclosed prior to the study and permissions must be taken from concerned department for conducting the experiment or study. In some cases, you may need approvals from the authors whose work you are referring to in the report.
