

Interactive Client Service to Offer Seamless Experience to Students

UK Dissertations has now started facilitating the direct process of interaction with its clients. We have been allowing direct interaction between our clients and research experts. Our aim is to provide a smoother experience to students who handover their projects to our writers or statisticians.

As part of our interactive client service, research scholars can now send emails to experts connected to their projects. If they prefer, then they may also talk to their allocated writers through online meetings on Skype. This will help students in gaining feedback and clarity on their theses or dissertations.